Directions: The first day of school is an exciting time, but what’s even more exciting is the 100th Day of School! On this day, students celebrate in all different ways. Read the article below in order to prepare for the “100th Day of School” Quiz Game! Underline important details as you read.

All over the world, students begin and end the school year on different days. Sometimes, school starts in August and ends in May. At other school, the year begins in September and ends in June. It really all depends on where you live. However, the 100th Day of School usually happens in February or March.

On your school calendar, the 100th Day of School probably leads to a lot of celebrating. In most classrooms, students work hard learning to count to 100. Sometimes, students learn 100 new words or set a goal of reading 100 books!

In other classrooms, students get to think about everything they’ve learned in the year so far. It’s also a great time to look forward to the future.

This celebration will look different in each school, but it will always be fun no matter where you are!
