POETRY: Using End Rhyme

The moon spills silver on the lake,
A whispered kiss the night does make.
Stars are diamonds, bright and clear,
Softly singing in my ear.

Dreams, like lanterns, softly glide,
Guiding hearts on waves that hide.
Mystic shadows dance and play,
Gently leading dreams astray.

Directions:

Write two stanzas of four lines each. Make sure each stanza uses a consistent end rhyme scheme (e.g., ABAB, AABB) like the example above.
