

Name _____

Making Inferences

Infer from the Text

Read the Story

In the heart of the bustling city, where towering skyscrapers cast long shadows over crowded streets, stood an old, decrepit bookstore. Its sign, weathered by time and neglect, creaked in the wind, barely readable. Yet, to those who knew its secrets, it was a sanctuary of stories waiting to be unearthed.

Amidst the musty smell of aging paper and ink, a lone figure huddled over a dusty tome in the dimly lit corner of the store. The figure, cloaked in mystery, seemed to be engrossed in deciphering the ancient script that adorned the pages.

As the door creaked open, a shaft of light pierced through the gloom, illuminating the figure's face. With a start, they looked up, revealing piercing eyes that seemed to hold a thousand untold tales.

"Welcome," they said, their voice a whisper carried on the breeze of forgotten memories.

The visitor hesitated, unsure whether to approach or flee from the enigmatic presence. But curiosity got the better of them, and they ventured further into the bookstore, drawn by the allure of its secrets.

In one corner, a stack of books teetered precariously, as if waiting for the slightest nudge to reveal hidden truths. In another, a table lay strewn with maps, their faded edges hinting at distant lands and untold adventures.

Suddenly, the figure spoke again, breaking the silence that enveloped the room like a heavy fog. "Choose wisely," they said, their voice echoing in the stillness. And with that cryptic message, the visitor found themselves faced with four choices, each more perplexing than the last.

Answer the Questions

1. Based on the description of the figure's activity upon the visitor's entrance, what inference can be made about their role in the bookstore?

- A. They were organizing inventory
- B. They were engaging in scholarly research
- C. They were taking inventory of sales
- D. They were browsing leisurely

2. In light of the description of the stack of books, what inference can be drawn about their condition and potential significance?

- A. They were frequently handled by customers
- B. They were recently restocked
- C. They contained rare or old texts
- D. They were part of a discounted sale

3. Considering the contents of the table, what inference can be made about the figure's interests or activities?

- A. They were preparing for a trip
- B. They were involved in a hobby
- C. They were engaged in cartography
- D. They were involved in gambling

4. Reflecting on the figure's message to the visitor, what inference can be made about the nature of the bookstore and the visitor's potential choices?

- A. The visitor should explore freely
- B. The visitor should proceed cautiously
- C. The visitor should not interact
- D. The visitor should seek assistance