Metaphors In Poetry

Directions: Read the poem carefully. Underline all the metaphors.

In fields of sunshine, bounding free,
Their hearts a map of loyalty,
Their fur's a river, flowing gold
They chase the wind, both young and old.

Their eyes are stars in velvet night,
Hold tales of joy and pure delight,
Their bark, a song that fills the air,
A symphony of love and care.

In silence deep or laughter's ring,
They teach us how to dance and sing,
Their steps are whispers on the earth,
Oh, we treasure their boundless worth.

So, let us cherish, warm and wise,
These friends beneath the open skies,
For dogs are more than words can say,
They light our lives in ev'ry way.
