

Name _____

Hyperbole Weather Report

Directions: Hello, future weather reporters! It's Hyperbole Hazel, and today we're talking weather forecast. Weather reporters love to grab your attention, and what better way to do that than with some wild hyperboles? Imagine you're a weather reporter, and today's weather is outrageously extreme. Your job is to write a short weather report using at least three hyperboles.

Example:

"Good morning, everyone! This is Hyperbole Hazel with your daily weather update, and let me tell you—it's hotter than a volcano out here! The sun feels like it's two inches away, and I'm pretty sure I just saw a bird burst into flames mid-flight. Don't forget your sunscreen—you'll need about 50 layers to survive this scorcher!"

Choose One of These Weather Scenarios:

1. The foggiest day in history
2. A blizzard like no other
3. The windiest day ever recorded

Draw a picture of the weather you're forecasting.

MY WEATHER REPORT

A sheet of lined paper with a red margin line on the left and horizontal red lines for writing. The paper has a slightly torn edge on the left side.